David Harrell

The Boy Who Would Be Captain Hook

In The Boy Who Would be Captain Hook, a moving and humorous look at growing up without a right hand, actor David Harrell relates how he wanted to be a part of the normal playground games, but was only included as the other kids recognized his prosthetic hook as being perfect for portraying Captain Hook in Peter Pan. Always wanting more, David clearly demonstrates that by not judging a book by its cover, everybody grows. The Boy Who Would be Captain Hook program serves as an excellent vehicle for character development curriculum.
